ROELEZ. COING HOME

BY FRANCIS BROWN. We said that the days were evil. We felt that they might be few, For low was our fortune's level, And heavy the winter grew; But one who lind no possession Looked up to the nzure dome, And said in his simple fashion "Dear friends, we are going home

This world is the same old dull market That wearied its earliest sage ; The times to the wise are dark yet, But so bath been many an age. And rich grow the toiling nations, And red grow the battle spears, And dreary with desolutions tielt onward the laden years:

What need of the changeless story Which time has so often told, The spectre that follows glory, The canker that comes with gold That wisdom, and strength, and honor Must fade like the far sea foam, And Death is the only winner .--

But, friends, we are going home!

The lionies we had hoped to rest in Were open to sin and strife. The dreams that our youth was blest in Were not for the wear of life: For care can darken the cottage, As well as the palace hearth, And birthrights are sold for pottage,

The springs have gone by in sorrow The summers were grieved away. And ever we feared to-morrow. And ever we blamed to-day. In depths which the searchers sounded On hills which the high heart clomb,

Have trouble and toil abounded-

But, friends, we are going home

But never redcemed on earth.

Our faith was the bravest builder, But found not a stone of trust; Our love was the fairest gilder, But levished its wreath on dust, And time bath the fabric shaken. And fortune the clay hath shown, For much they have changed and taken, But nothing was our own.

The paths which so many choose, The cifes there was found no place for, The riches we could not ust; The heart that when life was wintry Found summer in strain and tone. With these to our kin and country-Dear friends, we are going home! GENERAL BEAUREGARD

"THE DEVOTED BAND!"

THE shortest path to peace is that which carries have and desolation to our invader. It is believed that there are five or ten thousand men in the South ready and willing to slare the fate of Curtins, and devote them-selves in the salvation of their country. It is proposed that all who are willing to make this coffice, shall arm themselves with a sword twe live shooters and a carbine each, and mod, on horse-back, at some place to be des-ignited, convenient for the great work in land. Fire and sword must be carried to the houses of those who are visiting those bless-ing upon their neighbors. Philadelphia, and even New York, is not beyond, the reach of a long and brave arm. The moral people of these cities cannot be better taught the virtues of invasion then by the blazing light of their own dwellings.

PREDERICKSRCEG, JULY 23, 1861. Mrs. McRoberts, The Madam: Prompted by a Dear Madani: Prompted by a tender regard for the strangers now with us, and a heartfelt sympathy for those who law, with anxious solicitude follow them in their wanderings, with the yearning tenderness of parental affection, a stranger, disregarding all conventional formalities would venture to address you. But how to approach the subject which must be the mountful burgland of the stranger. len of my theme, I know not. What form o auxious heart the painful intelligence, that : son, perchance an only son, has been stricken down by disease; and yet the sad task is mine. In the bloom of manhood, flushed perhaps with the hope of a brilliant future, he has failen a victim to the ruthless invaled Death, after an illness of several days in the Hospital in this place, of typhoid fever.

Full well I know the hitterness of your grief, the agohy of spirit; the sorrow which, with almost rayless gloom will settle on the suit, as in your loneliness, you mourn a loved one gone. Could sympathy avail to light en your burden, or alleviate your grief, not long would you feel its crushing weight. Also, that it cannot. Yet there is a power that can support, and hand that can extract the envenomed dart; a light that can dispet the clouds, and drive away the gloom of grief.

That power is His who now in tender mercy craft and patrictic citizens of Oxford, gave says to thee -"Cast thy burden upon the Lord I them's fine dinner as they passed through that and he will sustain thee?"-that hand is now and he will sustain thee?"—that hand is now outstretched to pour into your bleeding heart, the bulm of consolation, that light which is but the smile of his countenance, awaits votir upward glance, to shed a flood of smilght along your darkened pathway. It may be with a mother's love, which none but a mother may know, you will picture him to your inagination, far from home, amongst strangers, and needing a mother's care. I am happy to be able to remove your fears in this respect; and to assure you that he was tenderly cared. Wm. M. McChycath.
